How to Run a Successful Virtual Event
These Days Most Events Are Still Virtual

And more than likely will continue to be
Create a Plan

- Establish a format.
- Determine platform
- Assign roles pre, during and post event
- Define access
- Pick a time
- Collect Data (Register)
Create a Plan

- Document promotion plan
- Test out the Technology
- Will people still have access to the event once it’s over?
- Revisit Data
- Say THANK YOU
Establish A Format

- Presentation
- Discussion
- Interview
- Panel
- Mixed Bag
- Will Q&A be involved?
- Networking/Mingling
Establish A Format

If this runs more than an hour, leave some time to take a break.

If this runs for more than two hours break event up into 20 minute chunks.
Determine Platform(s)

- Livestream
  - Social Platforms (Facebook Live, Instagram, Twitch, Twitter, YouTube)
- Closed
  - Zoom, Hivebrite, IBM Cloud, WebinarNinja, Teachable
- Multi-streams
  - Streamyard, Retream.io, Crowdcast

- Internet
- Platforms
- Lighting
- Audio

- Is it free
- Is there a cost/donation
- Is there an early bird special discount
- Is there tiered entry with special access
Provide Accessibility!

- Closed Captioned
- Visuals that are easy to see
  - Fonts easy to read
- Provide documents in advance

Pick A Time

When picking a time and date, think about the day-to-day activities of your audience. If you’re appealing to the 9-to-5 crowd, Monday is probably not going to work. But later in the week, when they’re needing a mental break from their workload? Much better.

Keep time zones in mind, too. If you’re based on the East Coast, starting an online event at 9am will most likely be too early for attendees on the West Coast.
Promotion Plan and Calendar

- Be sure to have a plan
- Everyone involved in the event should know the plan, the timeline and their role
Promote Early, Promote Often

According to Adobe, registrations tend to spike two-to-three weeks before an event. So it’s a good idea to ramp up around this time.

Which means when do you start promoting?

Promotion should be constant and consistent.

Collaborative
Register, otherwise known as Collect Data

Registration should be simple on the side of attendees and connect to the database of the organization on your end.
